

We Will Sing A New Song

Now's the time and now's the day we can sing our life again.
Every body come along to create a brand new song.
We will sing a new song to the world.

We've grown tired of the refrain. Calls for vengeance mark our day.
We will sing down all these walls, make a chorus fit for all.
We will sing a new song to the world.

All the saints from history sang a faith that set them free.
We will play their tunes again, find arrangements for today.
We will sing a new song to the world.

We will welcome all the poor and their notes that are not scored.
We will recreate the chord of the voiceless and ignored.
We will sing a new song to the world.

We will play in all the keys and the rhythms God receives.
In this multilingual earth let this music be rebirth.
We will sing a new song to the world.
